

THE FISH HATCHERY

Fish Hatchery was established very early in the history of Midway. It was owned by the Van Wagoner brothers. They didn't actually hatch fish there then, but trapped them. The property was sold, and after two or three owners, the State of Utah purchased it and converted it into a hatchery. Now they hatch not only local fish, but eggs from Canada, Alaska, and Europe. These fish are transported by truck and airplane, then planted in the waters of several western states. The favorite fish at the hatchery today, are the albino fish.

The Fish Hatchery

32

THE FISH HATCHERY

The Fish Hatchery was established very early in the history of Midway. It was owned by the Van Wagoner brothers. They didn't actually hatch fish there then, but rather, trapped them. The property was sold, and after two or three owners, the State of Utah purchased it and converted it into a hatchery. Now they hatch not only local fish eggs, but eggs from Canada, Alaska, and Europe. These fish are transported by truck and airplane, then planted in the waters of several western states. The favorite fish at the hatchery today, are the albino fish.

The Fish Hatchery

32

*See Utah State Midway
Fish Hatchery*

Midway Hatchery

26 Aug 1987

The numbers of fish stocked in the following waters during the week of August 3 through August 10 were:

Provo River, 1,000; Tibble Fork Reservoir, 1,000; Mill Hollow Reservoir, 1,000; East Canyon Creek, 500; Big Cottonwood Creek, 1,150; Weber River, 2,500; Twenty-first Street Pond, 1,000; Mayor's Pond, 1,000; Logan River, 2,700; Tony Grove, 1,500; Box Elder Creek, 500; Curtis Creek, 250; High Creek, 500; Smithfield Creek, 500; East Fork Little Bear, 500.

Midway Hatchery

9-3-87

In preparation for the Labor Day weekend the numbers of fish stocked in the following waters during the week of Aug. 25 through Aug. 31 were:

Provo River, 3,000; Tibble Fork Reservoir, 1,000; Current Creek, 1,000; Big Cottonwood Creek, 1,700; Weber

River, 5,000; Lost Creek, 1,000; Spring Creek, 3,000; North Fork Duchesne, 3,400; Moon Lake, 1,100; East Park Reservoir, 2,700; Brownie Lake, 2,900; Farmington Creek, 500; Farmington City Reservoir, 1,000; Mill Hollow Reservoir, 1,000; Cold Springs, 1,000; Logan area waters, 5,000.